School runner, was Woodside's first starter in the first relay, and he pulled so far ahead of his opponent, R. Teufehpauer, that Birney, his next opponent, had a lead of ten yards.

The Woodside Athletic Club Relay squad was entertained yesterday evening by the members of the club. By defeating the Washington Grove four in the relay race for the Foster trophy, the cup becomes the property of Woodside Club. Percy S. Brice Clagett, a former Central High the ring and down on his face. He lay School runner, was Woodside's first still for five seconds, and a swelling roar still for five seconds, and a swelling roar of cheers swept around the ring. It looked like a knockout. Slowly Kctchel began to work himself to his feet. Just as Jeff counted nine he was able to stand but he pitched into the carvas on his face a second later when Papke sent and other hard blow to his defenseless face. It was the same story until the eleventh round, then the crowd that had first watched in dazed surprise began to look on in pity. They began showing to Jeff to stop it. Ketchel was wabbling around the ring apparently defenseless. His left eye was entirely closed, and he spit blood with every gasp for breath. When Papke knocked him clear through the ropes toward the end of the round a stern murmur of protest went up from the house. The Finish.

Before Ketchel had a chance to set himself for another round of useless struggle, the twelfth, he got a right to he jaw that practically ended it. But he was still game. He craned himself up, and it was then that Papke delivered that punch that he had planned in the last rew seconds of the first round. It was a left hook with a path of less than eighteen inches, and Ketchel went down as if he had taken the shock that gave Papke his name. That was the finish.
